Cleanearth – the local solution to renewable energy

RENEWABLE energy is a good idea - by investing in it we can reduce our energy bills, lower our carbon emissions and possibly gain a payback from one of the current government tariffs schemes. However, actually taking the plunge and opting for some form of renewable energy for your own home or business can be quite daunting and can throw up many dilemmas - should you opt for solar panels or a wind turbine? Will you need planning permission? How do you make the most of the tariffs available? If this sounds like you then local renewable energy experts, Cleanearth, can help.

Cleanearth is a Wadebridge based, experienced and fully accredited installer of renewable energy systems. The company was founded by Dean Robson, who felt there was the need for a professionally run company that was dedicated solely to renewable energy. He comments, "Many large window and building companies are now bolting renewable energy options on to their offering - but this is not really the solution. Renewable energy is a specialised field and we felt customers would want to deal with a team of experts who understood this sector inside out and could provide them with the best 'green' solution to meet their needs and budget. We also feel that local people prefer dealing with local experts and that is what we offer".

He continues, "For many of you this will be the first time you have explored renewable energy and the choices can be confusing. That is why we will partner you through the entire process, from recommending a renewable energy solution that is appropriate for you, to guiding you through planning and grants, and applying for the latest Government incentives such as the current Feed in Tariff and Renewable Heat Incentive. Our involvement is not complete until the installation is 100% functional and all the benefits to you are in place".

"Renewable energy is the future and here in Cornwall we have the potential to benefit greatly. We have based our business in the heart of Wadebridge as we feel there is great interest among locals in how to heat and light their homes and businesses in a different and greener way. By doing so we not only gain personally, but we are helping to create resources and jobs for the local community, which will benefit us all now and our children in years to come".
